NORTHERN CREATIVE YOUTH

LAVA09

Why the LAVA title?
= A phenomenon
that erupts & later shapes itself.

The core theme is:
“Creative Industries”

CULTURAL ENTREPRENEURS

concept nicscription 29.10.09

“changing perceptions”

Business & innovation shape themselves from opportunity, circumstance & attitude. There are always creative ways & opportunities to benefit from all kinds of "melt-downs".

“LAVA-like work-flowing”

100+ delegates from 9 programme partner countries. This conference itinerary has a lot to deal with in a little time.

A very real metaphor for the private, public & social sectors. Pack your open-minds, leave judgement behind & bring plenty of tolerance along for the ride.

Expect the unexpected as a band of brave creative & cultural entrepreneurs endeavour "constructive value creation" during the event. The creative challenge = 36 hours to add creative value to some, or all, NPP projects.

And in that time we will all get a sense of something-of-the-process during the day and later share the fruits-of-their-labour in a final show & tell...what will happen next?

the-magma-mix:

Add = "Join, put, mix together. To Put More"
Advert = "turn towards"
Venture = "Undertaking"
Adventure = "About to happen"

Creative/Cultural Entrepreneurs

Ville Keranen: Ville's ideas come from a-far and reach out far. He is curious by nature and eager to get to know new people. Moreover, ten years experience in dialogue has given him advantage in many coaching situations and meetings. Ville is the slowest Monkey and utilizes the "Asian wondering" walking style quite a bit, both literally and in learning processes. His modern leadership style is both tender and dynamic, yet effective - awesome even. Ville's vision is to build Monkey Business into an international phenomenon. Or at least build a treehouse.

Tatu surely knows how to ignite an audience with his energy, passion and pragmatism. He's a true leader and a coach with a very strong sense of personal mastery.
